

Pattern for a choker

This pattern can be used to make a choker or a bracelet. It uses simple netting stitch, so you shouldn't have any problems with it. There are just couple pointers I'd like to give you. You can add several more beads at the bottom, below dark blue beads to make dangling ends. You can use transparent beads instead of light blue ones to make red beads stand out more. Now I'll show in the details how to attach a clasp and make the circled parts of the necklace.

A. To make rhombus' ends pointy you will need to tie a knot just below the top bead as shown on the diagram.

B. Here is the diagram that will help you to make a center of a rhombus. Since you will be using four beads instead of two like in the rest of the pattern, the center will have a little “bump”.

Here is the diagram, which shows how to attach a clasp.
